James Robinson, an old friend of the writer, who resides in the northeast part of Cape county, slipped in on us last Friday and gave us a few pleasant minutes, in which memories of days when we were younger were gone over and enjoyed again. He came down to help move Rev. Mr. Warren who is attending school at the College here.

Our public school opened Monday with former Judge O. R. Kirkpatrick as principal and Miss Ethel Greenwood, assistant. Much expense has been incurred for the benefit of the school children—to make them comfortable while they may be obtaining a common school education, but they must attend in order to get these advantages offered, and it is hoped every child in the district will be in school regularly.
